

Advocacy as a Core Digital Preservation Competency: STRENGTHENING AWARENESS, ACTION AND ORGANISATIONAL SUPPORT

Sarah Middleton and Dorothy Waugh, Digital Preservation Coalition

We are senior leaders and what is important to us is business continuity, cost, cybersecurity, and our reputation (amongst other things)!

By ensuring that critical digital information remains accessible, secure, and usable over time, it strengthens business continuity and reduces the risk of disruption when systems, suppliers, formats, or staff change.

It can help control costs by reducing inefficiencies, avoiding expensive data recovery or remediation work, and enabling informed technology decisions.

Digital preservation can support your priorities!

Through good governance, risk management and secure information practices, digital preservation can strengthen cybersecurity and organisational resilience.

DPC resources are available to support your advocacy activities

The digital preservation community is your friend and ally in advocacy

Find more DPC Resources here to support your advocacy work:
<https://www.dpconline.org/digipres>

Enormous thanks to the DPC Members who formed the Advocacy Toolkit Working Group to develop this new resource, and to The National Archives (UK) who funded and commissioned the new Novice to Know-How Modules on Advocacy.

Digital Preservation Coalition